POLITICAL SCIENCE & INTERNATIONAL AFFAIRS (PSIA)

Degrees Offered: M.A.

This program is offered in Durham.

The Department of Political Science at UNH offers a Master of Arts in Political Science (MA). The MA program provides advanced study in international relations, comparative politics, and American politics. The program serves students interested in working in government, public service, nonprofit management, electoral politics, government relations, education and research, and in preparing for Ph.D. programs. This program gives students the flexibility to tailor their coursework to individual interests within a curriculum that ensures a strong foundation in international and domestic politics, and research methods. Faculty engage in teaching and research activities encompassing the fields of international, comparative and American politics.

This program is offered to full- and part-time students.

Admission Requirements

For the MA program, applicants are expected to have majored in political science or a related discipline in the social sciences or humanities. All applicants must possess a bachelor's degree from an accredited institution. The Graduate Record Examination (GRE) general test is required.

https://cola.unh.edu/political-science

Programs

• Political Science (M.A.)

Courses

Political Science (POLT)

POLT 800 - Political Science Pro-Seminar

Credits: 4

Familiarizes students with political science as a profession. Briefly surveys the scope of the discipline in terms of the substantive fields and methodological approaches. Examines the logic of research design and explores diverse methods of inquiry (e.g., archival, experimental, case study, comparative analysis, field study, survey, etc.), including the process of generating a presentable research paper.

Grade Mode: Letter Grading

POLT 801 - Courts and Public Policy

Credits: 4

Impact of judicial decisions on public policy and influences on judicial decision making at the federal, state, and local levels.

Grade Mode: Letter Grading

POLT 805 - Elections in the United States

Credits: 4

Students will study various aspects of elections in the United States while observing and analyzing case studies during a campaign season.

Grade Mode: Letter Grading

POLT 809 - Reforming American Government

Credits: 4

Why is American government designed the way that it is (and how does it change?)? Whose interests are protected and whose interests are limited by its design? What do successful reforms tell us about the future of reform?

Grade Mode: Letter Grading

POLT #821 - Feminist Political Theory

Credits: 4

Familiarizes students with trends feminist political thinking; exploring issues of race, ethnicity, class, religion/spirituality, sexual orientation, ability, age as they relate to gender and the development of feminist political theory. Attention is paid to critical thinking and analysis using the paradigm of gender as a prism through which to view our lives and ideas.

Grade Mode: Letter Grading

POLT 840 - States and Societies in the Middle East

Credits: 4

This seminar explores the comparative politics of selected countries and conflicts in the contemporary Middle East and North Africa. We focus on understanding the causes and consequences of popular uprisings, civil wars, and protracted conflicts. The class is taught through discussion, with students taking active, participatory roles. Themes include changing forms of governance, changing practices of warfare, gender and minority rights, economic and environmental problems, protest and activism, state-society relations, and migration and refugees. Students read memoir, journalistic accounts, and theoretical articles in comparative politics to understand important developments. Specific country and issue cases change each year; recent seminars have addressed Israel-Palestine, Syria, Egypt, Iran, and Iraq. Writing, reading, and discussion intensive class. Designed as follow-on course to POLT 559, Comparative Politics of the Middle East, counts as capstone course for the Middle East Minor.

Grade Mode: Letter Grading

POLT 842 - Politics of Afghanistan, Pakistan, and India

Credits: 4

Afghanistan, Pakistan, and India are strategically important states and potential flashpoints of conflict. Nuclear neighbors, India and Pakistan have been in conflict for 70 years while Afghanistan remains internally unstable. The politics of these countries are also intimately involved with each other. The class will focus both on the internal politics of these states and their foreign relations with each other and the United States. Students will develop expertise in a crucial world region.

Grade Mode: Letter Grading

POLT 844 - The Middle East

Credits: 4

This course focuses on the contemporary politics of the Middle East, including the Middle East peace process, international relations, and the role of the United States. Students will analyze key issues such as Israeli-Palestinian conflict, Arab-Israeli peace process, Iran, and terrorism.

Grade Mode: Letter Grading

POLT 845 - The European Union

Credits: 4

This course examines the historical development, institutional structure, and policy-making process of the European Union (EU) and its member states. Students will analyze key issues such as economic integration, political integration, enlargement, and governance.

Grade Mode: Letter Grading

POLT 850 - The Global Political Economy

Credits: 4

This course explores the role of states and non-state actors in the global political economy, focusing on issues such as international trade, financial crises, and global governance. Students will analyze key debates and arguments about the nature of the global economy and the role of states in shaping it.

Grade Mode: Letter Grading
POLT 848 - Food and Wine Politics
Credits: 4
This course investigates the evolution of wine and foods politics over the past few decades. Food and wine politics provides a lens through which to analyze contrasting perspectives on production, markets, quality, consumer preferences, health, and safety. This course draws upon texts from economic history, political economy, economic sociology, and public policy to shed light on the differences and similarities in political and market organization across Europe, the United States, and emerging market economies. The first half of the course will focus on wine politics and the second half of the course will focus on food politics.
Grade Mode: Letter Grading

POLT #850 - Politics of Poverty
Credits: 4
Why are some countries rich while others are so poor? This course answers this question by examining several theories of economic development: political culture, modernization, dependency, regime types, urban bias, rent-seeking institutions, and international aid. The immediate goal of this course is for students to understand the causes of international inequality in the distribution of wealth. Students also improve their ability to evaluate theoretical arguments and empirical evidence critically, and develop reading and writing skills.
Grade Mode: Letter Grading

POLT #851 - Comparative Environmental Politics and Policy
Credits: 4
Environmental politics and policy across national boundaries and at different levels of governance. Comparisons of the U.S. and European Union environmental policies to build a foundation for comparisons across national boundaries and sub-national authorities. Students improve their understanding of how and why comparative methods are used to gain insight into politics and policymaking. Central concepts and debates addressed include the roles of expertise, sustainability, precautionary principle, the use of market mechanisms in policy, environmental justice, policy devolution and flexibility, environmental performance assessment, NGO roles, activism, and social movements. Using a range of theoretical approaches and historical and contemporary events and case studies, students will evaluate the claims and explanatory power of various concepts and theories. Includes ethical issues emerging from the theory and practice of environmental politics.
Grade Mode: Letter Grading

POLT 860 - Theories of International Relations
Credits: 4
Theoretical approaches of international politics, international organization, and international political economy with particular emphasis on systems theories, domestic determinants of foreign policy, and theories of decision making.
Grade Mode: Letter Grading

POLT 862 - International Political Economy
Credits: 4
This course has been designed to introduce advanced undergraduates and graduate students to the current theoretical discussions in international political economy. The course analyzes the development of current international economic regimes, as well as looks at systemic theories (interdependence, hegemonic stability), domestic determinants (bureaucratic, interest group) and decision-making theories (rational choice). By monitoring current economic and political news, students are challenged to apply these ideas to explain the current problems in political economy.
Grade Mode: Letter Grading

POLT 878 - International Organization
Credits: 4
This course is about cooperation at the international level. With a focus on international organizations, we examine what roles international institutions (both IGOs and NGOs) play in global governance and their effects in various issue areas. We examine their historical origins, functions, and the international and domestic political forces that impact their effectiveness. The course also considers the role of international organizations on world order including conflict resolution, peacekeeping, development, and human rights.
Grade Mode: Letter Grading

POLT 897B - Seminar in American Politics
Credits: 4
Advanced analysis and individual research.
Grade Mode: Letter Grading

POLT 897C - Seminar in Comparative Politics
Credits: 4
Advanced analysis focusing on government and politics in foreign nations or regions. Areas of interest may include: constitutional structures, political parties and interest groups, legislatures, bureaucracy, and public policy. Topics address such concerns as: religion and politics, patterns of economic development, ethnic strife, and political leadership.
Grade Mode: Letter Grading

POLT 897E - Seminar in International Politics
Credits: 4
Advanced analysis focusing on problems of theory and contemporary issues in international politics. Areas of interest may include: democratic norms in international relations, NATO expansion and European security, the peace process in the Middle East, etc. See department listings for semester offerings.
Grade Mode: Letter Grading

POLT 898 - International Organization
Credits: 4
This course is about cooperation at the international level. With a focus on international organizations, we examine what roles international institutions (both IGOs and NGOs) play in global governance and their effects in various issue areas. We examine their historical origins, functions, and the international and domestic political forces that impact their effectiveness. The course also considers the role of international organizations on world order including conflict resolution, peacekeeping, development, and human rights.
Grade Mode: Letter Grading

POLT 899 - Master's Thesis
Credits: 4
Each student carries out original research that culminates in a master’s thesis.
Repeat Rule: May be repeated for a maximum of 8 credits.
Grade Mode: Graduate Credit/Fail grading

POLT 990 - Internship Capstone
Credits: 4
Field experience in a governmental or nongovernmental organization at the local, state, national, or international level. Students will consult with a faculty mentor to identify an internship experience, and work with the faculty mentor to complete a culminating project synthesizing the internship experience with their prior academic coursework.
Grade Mode: Letter Grading

POLT 995 - Capstone Research Project
Credits: 4
A) American Politics; B) Comparative Politics; C) International Politics; D) Political Thought; E) Public Administration; F) Public Policy. The graduate student engages in independent study under the direction of one of the faculty members of the department.
Equivalent(s): PA 995
Grade Mode: Letter Grading
POL 996 - Independent Study
Credits: 1-4
A) American Politics; B) Comparative Politics; C) International Politics; D) Political Thought; E) Public Administration; F) Public Policy. The graduate student engages in independent study under the direction of one of the Faculty members of the department.
Repeat Rule: May be repeated for a maximum of 8 credits. May be repeated up to 1 time.
Grade Mode: Letter Grading

Faculty
Political Science and International Affairs Department Faculty