   - Present seminar paper or project at conference

2. Thesis option
   - SPAN 899 Master’s Thesis (6 credits total)

The MA in Spanish offers two options to fulfill the concluding experience of the program:
1) Non-thesis option (30 credits, ten classes). Students who select this option will present a seminar paper or project at a local, regional, or national conference. Presentation at the UNH Graduate Research Conference is acceptable to fulfill this requirement.
2) Thesis option (30 credits, eight classes plus thesis). Enrollment in SPAN 899 Master’s Thesis (6 credits) counts for two of the ten required courses for the M.A. The thesis option involves the preparation of a Master’s Thesis directed by a faculty advisor. This research track is specifically designed for those students interested in pursuing a Ph.D. in Spanish or in a related field. Students must follow the format requirements and submission procedures as noted in the Graduate School’s Thesis Manual.
