ANTHROPOLOGY (ANTH)

Anthropology is a field of visionaries, makers and collaborators, taking a critical, creative and holistic approach to the study of humankind. Our faculty teach hands-on courses in archaeology and socio-cultural, applied, biological and forensic anthropology, reflecting our faculty members' research in the Americas, Europe, Africa, and Central and Southeast Asia. Through coursework, fieldwork and study-abroad experiences, students gain life-long learning skills that prepare them for success in cross-cultural understanding and communication, working for diverse organizations and tackling complex social issues in today's global world. Our students are employed in a range of areas such as public health, business, international development, museums and education.

Anthropology (ANTH)

ANTH 411 - Global Perspectives on the Human Condition: An Introduction to Anthropology
Credit: 4
This course introduces students to the core concepts, methods, and research of contemporary cultural anthropology, as well as to the ways in which the discipline is relevant to their daily lives. Students will learn how anthropology approaches the study of culture, language and communication, family and kinship, gender and sexuality, race and ethnicity, economic relationships, political systems, religion, social change and globalization. Ethnographic material from both the U.S. and cross-culturally, as well as a series of hands-on, experiential and interactive activities, will demonstrate anthropological concepts and questions.
Attributes: World Cultures(Discovery)
Equivalent(s): ANTH 411H, ANTH 411W
Grade Mode: Letter Grading

ANTH 411W - Global Perspectives on the Human Condition: An Introduction to Anthropology

ANTH 412 - Broken Pots and Buried Cities: Introduction to World Archaeology
Credit: 4
Traces the history of archaeology's most spectacular finds and how those moments of adventure and glory developed into a scientific discipline. Provides an introduction to the methods used by archaeologists to recover, analyze, and interpret data in their ongoing effort to understand humanity through the analysis of those small things left behind.
Attributes: Social Science (Discovery)
Grade Mode: Letter Grading

ANTH 440A - Honors/Medicine and Culture: Science, Technology and the Body
Credit: 4
This course takes a comparative, cross-cultural approach to global medicine. Through critical readings, multimedia presentations, class discussions, and expository writing, we consider how techno-scientific developments, transnational flows, environmental transformations, and historical inequities shape how we know and experience our bodies. Key course topics include controversies surrounding new medical technologies, the interactions between Western and non-Western medical systems, and innovative responses to chronic global diseases.
Attributes: Environment, TechSociety(Disc); Honors course
Grade Mode: Letter Grading

ANTH 440B - Honors/Saving Culture: Heritage Management
Credit: 4
Culture and heritage are increasingly important topics for scholars, art connoisseurs, politicians, and the public alike. The Taj Mahal in India is the UNESCO world heritage site, but is yoga that many around the world engage in? Who decides what heritage is and what counts as culture? How do these decisions impact peoples' daily lives? The course introduces students to the concept of cultural heritage and how it "works" in complex, non-universal ways.

<td>Animals, Identity, and Culture</td>
<td>4</td>
<td>This course explores the roles of identity and culture in shaping the relationships humans form with other animals. A range of relationships are investigated, including those that figure animals as beings sharing in personhood, as prey, as technologies, as workers, as food, and as family. Inspired by the explosion of new research in multiple disciplines, this course emphasizes cross-cultural and transhistorical variations, while also exploring some of the biosocial features humans share with other animals.</td>

<td>Core Concepts in Anthropology</td>
<td>4</td>
<td>This foundational course, required within the first year of declaring the major, provides students with a cross-field perspective on anthropology through a focus on writing in the discipline. Approaching humankind as cultural and biological beings with distinct as well as interconnected histories, the course exposes students to the varied research practices of cultural, biological, archaeological, and linguistic anthropologists. Students will build skills in reading and research and will practice writing within several disciplinary genres and conventions that reflect anthropology’s public as well as scholarly sides. Featured topics provide entry points into key anthropological themes, including the holistic study of human thought, behavior, language, ideologies, and institutions; race, gender, and inequality; and adaptation and change within social and natural environments.</td>

ANTH 597 - Special Topics
Credits: 4
Occasional and experimental offerings on an entry level. May be repeated for different topics.
Repeat Rule: May be repeated up to unlimited times.
Grade Mode: Letter Grading

ANTH #610 - Medical Anthropology: Illness and Healing
Credits: 4
Intermediate-level introduction to medical anthropology through sociocultural and bioarchaeological approaches to describing health-related ideas and practices in cross-cultural, historical and ecological contexts. Focuses on human illness and religious experiences of disease and the end of life. Considers how suffering, diagnosis, treatment, prevention, and care are shaped by: religion and ritual; symbolism and language; age, gender and sexuality; families, social movements, and governments; and the worldwide expansion of biomedical expertise and technologies.
Equivalent(s): ANTH 610W
Grade Mode: Letter Grading

ANTH 611 - History of Anthropological Theory
Credits: 4
Provides a grounding in the history of social thought in cultural anthropology and sister disciplines from 19th century evolutionism to the present. Course reading is based on primary sources - original essays written by theorists central to the discipline. Assessment is partly based on students' ability to apply theoretical concepts to novel contexts, as well as the ability to evaluate and compare theories on the basis of logic and evidence.
Grade Mode: Letter Grading

ANTH 612 - Applied Anthropology
Credits: 4
Introduces students to the ways anthropological questions, concepts, and methods are applied to real world problems. Students learn how anthropological knowledge and methods can be used in a wide range of disciplines and careers. The course includes experiential learning where students engage with professionals doing work within applied anthropology. Students gain perspective on the practical possibilities in their major and acquire skills to position themselves for future careers.
Grade Mode: Letter Grading

ANTH #616 - Religion, Culture, and Society
Credits: 4
Major anthropological theories of religion; analysis of religious beliefs as symbolic systems and their interrelations with ritual and other social institutions. Detailed study of specific religions. Operates on a seminar format.
Attributes: Writing Intensive Course
Grade Mode: Letter Grading

ANTH 620 - Ritual and Religion of Ancient Mesoamerica
Credits: 4
This course examines the religious beliefs and ritual practices of ancient Mesoamerican cultures, such as the Olmec, Maya, and Aztecs. Students learn about the meaning of ritual practices (like human sacrifice and burial rites) and the myths that underlie this mysterious ritual behavior from an archaeological perspective. This class is writing intensive and involves primarily in-class discussion. Students are evaluated based on their participation, oral presentations, and a number of writing assignments.
Attributes: Writing Intensive Course
Grade Mode: Letter Grading

ANTH 625 - Sexuality in Cross-Cultural Perspectives
Credits: 4
This course examines the ideologies and practices associated with sexuality from a broad perspective that incorporates diverse case studies from the ethnographic record. Working from the argument that much of human sexual behavior is culturally constructed rather than biologically determined, the course invites students to expand their notion of the "normal" and to consider the human condition from a cross-cultural perspective. Topics discussed include cross-cultural varieties of transgendered experience, same-sex sexualities, and heteronormative identities.
Attributes: Writing Intensive Course
Grade Mode: Letter Grading

ANTH 640 - Anthropology of Islam: Muslims' Everyday Lives in Contemporary Communities
Credits: 4
This course introduces students to different ways of being Muslim in contemporary world, focusing on Muslim communities residing in Central Asia (post-Soviet independent countries, China, and Afghanistan); the United States and some parts of Europe; and the Middle East and North Africa (MENA).
Grade Mode: Letter Grading

ANTH #645 - Cultural Sustainability and the Role of Public Archaeology
Credits: 4
In archaeology, the sustainability movement has encouraged increased outreach and education in an effort to make archaeology relevant to the public and to sustain past lifeways, especially cultural traditions threatened of being erased in our increasingly homogenized and globalized world. Students will be introduced to this field and experience for themselves how to translate academic archaeology to the masses through public programming, from designing museum exhibits to participating in "open archaeology" education for the public.
Attributes: Writing Intensive Course
Repeat Rule: May be repeated for a maximum of 8 credits.
Grade Mode: Letter Grading

ANTH 650 - Anthropology of Migration and Movement
Credits: 4
This course uses an anthropological framework to gain a more nuanced understanding of the complexities of global migration and human movement. It will examine the theoretical underpinnings of an anthropological perspective on migration and movement, and will explore a variety of ethnographic case studies to explore the significant political, economic, environmental, legal, and social issues that influence global migration.
Attributes: Writing Intensive Course
Grade Mode: Letter Grading

ANTH 655 - Bioarchaeology of the Human Past
Credits: 4
Bioarchaeology is the study of human remains from ancient and historical sites. Past populations can be examined by utilizing principles of skeletal and dental biology, as well as archaeological context and ethnohistory, to address anthropological questions. This course will encompass a global survey of bioarchaeological sites and research, with a focus on women and children in the past. Students will explore ethical issues, controversies, excavation methods, and inclusion of indigenous communities.
Grade Mode: Letter Grading
ANTH 660 - Human Osteology
Credits: 4
This course will cover the study of the human skeleton (osteology) and the ethical handling and treatment of human remains. The lecture format will be followed for the first 2/3 of the course while students will participate in hands-on skeletal analysis for the last third of the class. Students will learn about the major bones of the body, common pathologies, trauma analysis and interpretation, and age, sex, stature, and ancestry estimation.
Grade Mode: Letter Grading

ANTH #674 - Archaeological Survey and Mapping in Belize
Credits: 4
Involves hands-on training in field reconnaissance, survey and mapping of archaeological sites, and the use of ARCGIS mapping software. This field course takes place in Belize (Central America) and will be of interest to students studying anthropology, geography and geospatial technologies, among others.
Co-requisite: INCO 589
Repeat Rule: May be repeated for a maximum of 8 credits.
Grade Mode: Letter Grading
Special Fee: Yes

ANTH 675 - Archaeological Field School in Belize
Credits: 4
The Archaeological Field School in Belize is a hands-on course aimed at training students in all aspects of archaeological field and laboratory work. Students gain experience in field excavations and laboratory processing and analyses of recovered artifacts. The course consists of lectures 2-3 nights/week on a variety of topics related to Archaic and ancient Maya civilization, as well as lecture and class discussion on a range of topics concerning archaeological field and laboratory techniques.
Repeat Rule: May be repeated for a maximum of 8 credits.
Grade Mode: Letter Grading
Special Fee: Yes

ANTH 670 - Africana Religions: Mobility, Power, and Material Culture
Credits: 4
Explores Africana indigenous and earth-based and ancestral practices, Islam, and Christianity to show how religion has powerfully shaped communities and always been on the move within and beyond the African continent, including in the Americas and Asia. Uses theories of media and material culture to survey religious environments, ritual, oral, visual, and expressive arts. Students tour virtual and local exhibits and interact with curators, heritage specialists, community members, and museum collections to curate an exhibit.
Attributes: Writing Intensive Course

ANTH 685 - Gender, Sexuality and HIV/AIDS in Sub-Saharan Africa
Credits: 4
HIV/AIDS has been defined as one of the exceptional global pandemics of the Millennium. This course traces the rise and global spread of HIV and AIDS and the introduction of antiretroviral therapies and prevention in sub-Saharan African and its Diasporas with a focus on sex and gender. Includes findings on heterosexual and LGBTIQA individuals, couples, and communities and perspectives on: kinship, marriage, love, transactional sex, reproduction, contraception, gender-based violence, and activist movements. Uses ethnographies and health sciences databases.
Attributes: Writing Intensive Course
Grade Mode: Letter Grading

ANTH 695 - Globalization and Global Population Health
Credits: 4
This course traces how political economies drive global movements of people, diseases, and health interventions. It takes a multidisciplinary approach through medical anthropology and humanities, public health, and sustainability, looking at: histories of health intervention and biomedical technologies; under-development; shifting public-private sector governance; humanitarianism, cultural knowledge, expertise, and translation; and health-related social justice approaches and liberation theologies. Topics may include: epidemics, non-communicable diseases, metabolic disorders, substance abuse, violence, injury, and aging.

ANTH 700 - Internship
Credits: 1-4
Provides student with supervised practical experience in anthropology in one of the following areas: A) professional or community support work within an academic or applied anthropology setting; B) teaching; C) museum work; D) archaeological laboratory or fieldwork; E) research on a faculty research project; F) editorial work on a journal or faculty book project.
Repeat Rule: May be repeated for a maximum of 8 credits.
Grade Mode: Letter Grading
ANTH 750 - Islam and Gender: Gendered Lives of Muslims
Credits: 4
This seminar focuses on the lives of Muslims. While critically questioning some existing ideas about and representations of Muslims, it introduces students to practical and historical aspects of gender politics in different Muslim communities.
Attributes: Writing Intensive Course
Grade Mode: Letter Grading

ANTH 785 - The Anthropology of Dreams and Dreaming
Credits: 4
This course emphasizes the "dream theories" of indigenous societies and how beliefs and practices associated with dreaming are integrated into cultural, ontological, political, economic, and religious systems. Western theories are also examined from within a comparative perspective—from basic Freudian models to contemporary scientific debates about the neurological origin and significance of dreaming.
Attributes: Writing Intensive Course
