HISTORY (HIST)

The Department of History is one of the top history departments in the country, with an internationally recognized faculty in American, European, and World and Ancient history. History professors have won some of the most important prizes in the profession, and they often appear on television and other media outlets. But what really distinguishes the department's faculty is that we love to teach. Our courses cover a wide range of times, places and subjects, from ancient history to the history of the modern world.

History is a flexible major, which makes it a good choice for students who want to complete a double major in another discipline. Popular double majors include communication, justice studies, economics and international affairs.

The Education Department’s 4+1 graduate program is also available to history majors. Students who complete that program receive their social studies teacher certification in five years and graduate with a B.A. and M.Ed. or M.A.T.

The Department offers a major and minor in history. We also administer an interdisciplinary minor, the social studies of science and technology.

The History Department at UNH has approximately 200 undergraduate majors; about 50 students graduate with a history major every year.

Five-Year BA/MA Program

The History Department offers our majors an opportunity to complete an accelerated Master’s Degree in history in as little as one additional year of study. Eligible seniors and juniors are able to take up to 12 credits in graduate history courses, which will count both toward the completion of the history B.A. requirements, and the history M.A. requirements. This accelerated option is available for both the standard track M.A. and the museum studies track.

To be eligible for the program students must have a GPA of 3.2 or higher. Students also must have completed 96 credits by the time they enter the accelerated M.A. program.

Students should apply before April 10th of their junior year. Students interested in applying must complete the UNH graduate studies application. Applications will include two letters of recommendation, a cover letter, a writing sample and a UNH transcript. GRE scores are NOT required. Students should also submit a cover letter and an endorsement from a member of the History Department directly to the graduate director, Professor David Bachrach at david.bachrach@unh.edu.

If you are interested in applying for the accelerated M.A. program, or would like additional information about the program, please contact Professor David Bachrach.

HIST 437H - Honors/The Mad Among Us: A Global History of Mental Disorder
Credits: 4
Mental disorder is a universal and persistent condition in human history. Every society has struggled to make sense of it; every society has struggled to address it. But, what is mental disorder? Is it a disease? If so, of what? The body? The brain? The soul? Is it a chemical imbalance? Genetic destiny? Is it the wage of sin? The mark of the devil? The curse of a god? Or is it a social label or cultural construct - a name slapped on thought, feeling, or behavior that defies a society’s definition of “normal?” This course seeks to answer these questions by exploring the great range of beliefs human societies, ancient to modern and from across the globe, have developed to identify and define mental disorder as well as the methods they have employed to treat or contain it.
Attributes: Historical Perspectives(Disc); Honors course

HIST 440A - Martin Luther King, Jr., and the Struggle for Racial Justice
Credits: 4
This course examines Martin Luther King’s life, philosophy, and career on the front lines of the civil rights movement. In our study of King as well as the larger black freedom struggle, we seek an understanding of how certain questions related to racial justice played out in American history. We focus on issues of civil disobedience, just and unjust laws, love and hate, violence and non-violence. Students will read many of King’s famous writings such as the Letter from Birmingham Jail, as well as his lesser-known speeches - among them king’s 1967 address denouncing the Vietnam War. More generally, this seminar introduces students to the rudiments of historical thinking and asks broader questions about the role of individuals in history and how social change happens. Course meets the History major requirement for Group I.
Credits: 4
Every person interacts with the health care system – including you. In this class, students will study the interactions between law, society, science, and medicine to gain an understanding about how the American health care system developed and who has and does make decisions about health. Topics covered include vaccination, health care providers, discrimination, and epidemics. Course meets the History major requirement for Group I.
Attributes: Historical Perspectives(Disc); Honors course
Equivalent(s): HIST 604

HIST 440D - Honors/Citizens and Persons
Credits: 4
Definitions of citizenship have changed dramatically in the course of history. In this class, we will trace the evolution of expanding (and occasionally contracting) political and civil rights and responsibilities over time, with an emphasis on events in multicultural American nations and emphasizing how laws, social practices, unique historical contexts, and individuals’ understanding of self and other have mutually produced each other. The course is part of the Honors Symposium “Being Human” and will engage in an interdisciplinary conversation about personhood, humanity, rights and responsibilities, and dehumanization.
Attributes: Historical Perspectives(Disc); Honors course

HIST 440E - Honors/Drugs and Addiction in World History
Credits: 4
As drug addiction rates in the US are reaching epidemic proportions, new solutions and perspectives are becoming increasingly important. This course teaches students how a variety of cultures, including the Aztecs, Maya, Vedic India, China, and Greco-Roman antiquity, confronted the problems of drug use and addiction in their own societies. By examining these phenomena through the lens of other culture’s values, students will gain a valuable perspective by which to address these problems today.
Attributes: Honors course; World Cultures(Discovery)

HIST 440F - Honors/Islam, Art, and the Past
Credits: 4
While the world is all too familiar with images of ISIS using explosives and frills to destroy ancient sites and artifacts in Iraq and Syria, there has been little attention given to the dynamic role of art within past and present Islamic societies. Yet, Islam has a rich and vibrant artistic tradition, one in which ancient civilizations played and continue to play a major role. This course introduces students to Islamic art and cultural heritage through a study of Islam’s engagement with past artistic traditions in the fields of architecture and the fine arts. It also addresses how the recent actions of ISIS have changed questions about cultural heritage and stewardship in the Middle East and the West. Finally, the course asks students what they can and should do to preserve cultural heritage.
Attributes: FinePerformingArts(Discovery); Honors course

HIST 440G - Honors/Revolutions in Science
Credits: 4
In this course, we study several examples of scientific revolutions, and consider whether a general model applies to them all. How have ideas about the universe and human beings’ place in it changed dramatically at certain points in history? Do scientific revolutions have a common structure? Do they have any connection to political or social revolutions? Are we living through a scientific or technological revolution? These are among the questions we will examine.
Attributes: Historical Perspectives(Disc); Honors course; Writing Intensive Course

HIST 444D - Slavery and Society in Pre-Colonial Africa
Credits: 4
Examines the evolution and practice of the institution of slavery in Africa from the earliest times to the era of European colonialism. Using contemporary personal narratives by the slaves, the course examines specific historical contexts of various slave systems, continuity and change in the ideologies and practices of slavery, religion and slavery, race and slavery, gender and slavery, conditions of slaves, as well as the making and uses of slaves - as domestics, concubines, eunuchs, officials, soldiers, labor and capital. Using films, slide images, and a comparative approach, African slavery will be examined within the context of the early evolution of slavery in the Mediterranean and Islamic worlds as well as its later expressions in the Atlantic world of the Americas. Course meets the History major requirements for Group III.
Attributes: Historical Perspectives(Disc); Inquiry (Discovery); Writing Intensive Course

HIST #444G - Voices from Modern China
Credits: 4
Human voices—written or vocal—left records of history. Yet too often we hear only the voice of the statesman, which is too partial to bring to life a colorful history like China’s. This seminar explores China’s dramatic changes in modern times through revolution, reform, and war as experienced by a wide range of individuals who witnessed or participated in these huge events and left their voices in record. We will read and discuss the lived experiences of some iconic (well-known) political or cultural leaders, as well as working women, male and female revolutionaries, youthful rebels, a leading industrialist, and foreign observers during China’s extraordinary transformations over the past two centuries. Writing intensive. Course meets History major requirement for Group III.
Attributes: Historical Perspectives(Disc); Inquiry (Discovery); Writing Intensive Course

HIST 444H - Honors/From Beijing to Baghdad: Objects along the Silk Road
Credits: 4
The Silk Road, often characterized as the world’s first great superhighway, played a vital role in spreading forms of art and in developing new technologies for their production. The peoples along the Silk Road traded luxury goods such as silk and jade as well as culinary and musical traditions. Through lectures, readings, films, and podcasts we will explore the trade links between East and West and the material objects traded along the way.
Attributes: FinePerformingArts(Discovery); Honors course; Inquiry (Discovery); Writing Intensive Course

HIST 444J - Honors/Global Citizenship: In Pursuit of Liberty
Credits: 4
What does it mean to be a global citizen? Are we? What are human rights? Are they universal? This honors discovery course will explore with the men and women who traveled and thought beyond the borders of their locality and their moment of time and who imagined themselves citizens of the world. We will start with early revolutions that traversed oceans and national borders. We’ll read utopias that saw their world differently. In the end, we will investigate major global challenges of our own world. We will move backwards, but also forwards in history. We will read novels, and perform plays. We will listen to Beethoven and Berlioz, in class and discuss larger questions of our international community from sustainability to diversity, as they echo through different disciplines. Course meets History major requirement for Group I or II.
Attributes: Historical Perspectives(Disc); Honors course; Inquiry (Discovery); Writing Intensive Course
HIST 483 - History of World Religions
Credits: 4
Introduces the religions of the world in terms of historical development, relationship to society, belief system, central texts, and ritual practices. Begins with the religions of small and tribal societies (e.g., African, Native American), moves through religions of complex societies (e.g., Hinduism), and then studies the various traditions that emanated from ancient revelations: Zoroastrianism, Buddhism, Judaism, Christianity, Islam, and certain new forms of Christianity. Course meets History major requirement for Group III.
Attributes: Historical Perspectives(Disc)
Equivalent(s): HIST 483W, RS 483, RS 483W

Course meets the History major requirements for Group II.

HIST 538 - Modern European War and Society: The Napoleonic Wars to World War II
Credits: 4
This course is organized around three conflicts: the Napoleonic Wars, World War I, and World War II. As we study them, we’ll discuss the evolution and impact of total war in order to understand how societies work in wartime and how these conflicts have shaped Europe. In our exploration of each war, we examine a range of participants from international alliances to individual soldiers and to civilians involved in the conflict. Total war, by its nature, incorporates most elements of society, so we will spend time looking at the homefronts as well as the battlefronts. We will survey the conflicts as a whole, but also devote time to some special events or elements. For example, we will look at the battle of Somme during the portion of the course dedicated to World War I. We will also study some of the art that arose out of the conflict. The core of the class will be lectures, but we will engage in some discussion almost every day and there are some classes that will be dedicated to discussion. Course meets the History major requirements for Group II.

HIST 603 - European Conquest of North America
Credits: 4
European Conquest of America explores many of the major issues relating to the creation and development of colonial North America. We will focus particularly on the extraordinary heterogeneous mixture of peoples who lived in North America and the Caribbean, and on the complexity and consequences of their interactions. Throughout the semester we will continually evaluate arguments among historians about whether or not it makes sense to understand the colonial period in terms of a conquest, or whether Native Americans retained enough power and resistance throughout the colonial period to make such an interpretation inaccurate. Course meets History major requirement for Group I.
