UNIVERSITY WRITING REQUIREMENT

In 1995, the Academic Senate established the Writing Program as an expression of the following fundamental values and goals for writing at UNH: As the cornerstone of any higher education, academic and disciplinary literacy is the concern of the entire faculty and the whole University curriculum. Understanding that literacy is a long-term development process, the University community is committed to the following goals for student writing and learning:

• Students should use writing as an intellectual process to learn material and to discover, construct, and order meaning.
• Students should learn to write effectively in various academic and disciplinary genres for professional and lay audiences.
• Students should learn to display competence with the generic features and conventions of academic language.

In order to help realize the above goals, writing intensive (WI) courses were established as well as the University Writing Requirement (UWR).

Writing-Intensive (WI) Courses

WI courses are identified by "Writing Intensive Course" in the "Attributes" section of the course descriptions. See CEP 795W below for an example:

CEP 795W (01) - Investigations

Attributes: Writing Intensive Course
Instructors: STAFF

Some courses have both writing-intensive and nonwriting-intensive versions, such as HIST 405 History of Early America and HIST 405W History of Early America. In these cases, only the sections with the "W" in the course number are writing intensive.

A periodically updated master list of WI courses is available. Course attributes can change, so students should make sure to consult the course description for real-time information on WI status when they enroll. Not all courses are offered every semester, so for advance course planning students should consult with their advisors or the owning department.

University Writing Requirement (UWR)

All bachelor's degree candidates are required to complete four writing-intensive courses, which must include ENGL 401 First-Year Writing and three additional writing-intensive courses, one of which must be in the student's major, and one of which must be at the 600 level or above.

Frequently Asked Question: "Can the same course satisfy both requirements?"
